CHAPTER XI.

An Act to explain and amend the Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act, 1926.

[10th July 1940.]

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

Removal of doubts as to effect of Matrimonial Causes Act, 1937, on divorce jurisdiction under Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act, 1926.

1 (1) For the removal of doubts it is hereby declared that in considering, for the purposes of the Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act, 1926 (hereafter in this Act referred to as "the principal Act")—

26 & 17 Geo. 5 c. 40.

(a) what are the grounds on which a decree for the dissolution of any marriage may be granted by the High Court in England according to the law for the time being in force in England, and

(b) what are the principles and rules on which, in the exercise of its jurisdiction to make decrees for the dissolution of a marriage, and as incidental thereto, to make orders as to damages, alimony or maintenance, custody of children and costs, the High Court in England for the time being acts and gives relief, the amendments of the law relating to divorce effected by sections one to four, six and eight to ten of the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1937, have to be taken into account, and that references to the principal Act to a decree for the dissolution of a marriage include references to such a decree of presumption of death and of dissolution of a marriage as is authorized by the said section eight.

(2) A decree for the dissolution of a marriage granted under the principal Act before the appointed day shall not be invalid by reason only that regard has not been had to the provisions of section one of the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1937, and where before the appointed day a petition under the principal Act has been dismissed which would not have been dismissed if the principal Act had been construed in the manner specified in sub-section (1) of this section, the dismissal of the petition shall not prejudice the bringing of a new petition upon the same, or substantially the same, facts

(2) For the removal of doubts it is hereby declared that the provision in the said proviso (c) as originally enacted that no court shall make any decree of dissolution of marriage except where either the marriage was solemnized in India or the adultery or crime was committed in India did not operate so as to prevent the making of such a decree on grounds other than adultery or crime where the marriage was solemnized in India, and where before the appointed day a petition for the dissolution of a marriage has been dismissed on the ground that the said provision did so operate the dismissal of the petition shall not prejudice the bringing of a new petition upon the same, or substantially the same, facts.
